23. COMPETITION VENUE

Completed in a record-breaking two years’ time, Budapest’s new wonder, the Duna Arena served as the main venue of the 17th FINA World Championships in July 2017, and has hosted several other FINA Aquatics events since. The complex features two Olympic-size pools – the competition pool is 3m deep, while the depth of the warm-up pool can be set according to the needs.

Applying the latest development in all areas, this magnificent building has become a great home of each aquatic discipline and has already hosted a series of international events. Even though it offers approximately 5,000 seats in legacy mode – as of today, it can be re-enlarged within months if another major showcase event visits the city.

24. BUDAPEST

Budapest is the capital and the largest city of Hungary, a metropolis which leaves the visitor thirsting for more. This impressive capital has the very best of what Hungary has to offer. It is a large, vibrant city, with a population of approximately 2 million people. Being one of the most densely populated cities in the region, it is not just the powerhouse of the Hungarian economy, but also an important cultural centre and the focus of the country’s political life.

The history of the city began with Aquincum, originally a Celtic settlement that became the Roman capital of Lower Pannonia. Hungarians arrived to the territory in the 9th century. Budapest became a single city occupying both banks of the Danube River with the unification of Pest, Buda and Óbuda in 1873.

Today Budapest is a popular tourist destination in Europe. Even if only for a short stay, there are many things worth seeing in Budapest. It has the largest thermal water system in the world, the first underground of European was built in Budapest more than a 120 years ago, and the Hungarian capital has the third largest Parliament building in the world, as well as the biggest and one of the most spectacular synagogues in Europe.

The Buda Castle Hill, with the 700-year-old Matthias Church, the Royal Palace and the Fishermen's Bastion, is among the most fascinating World Heritage Sites, with spectacular views to the downtown and the Danube River, with her many bridges, amongst them the beautiful Chain Bridge – the first one to permanently connect Buda and Pest.

The Opera House, was opened in 1884 during the Austro-Hungarian Empire, attracts not only the music lovers, but also those who want to admire its architectural beauty. The Opera is located on Andrássy Avenue, often called Budapest's Champs-Elysées, leading on to Heroes' Square, built in 1896 to mark the thousandth anniversary of the Hungarian state. The City Park is just a couple of steps away – with Vajdahunyad Castle, a replica of a Transylvanian castle of that name, the Budapest Zoo and many museums.

The city's cultural life is vibrant and diverse, where museums, galleries, theatres and concert halls are completed with year-round festivals, concerts, exhibitions and other cultural events.

Budapest is packed with museums and galleries, 223 altogether, and there are plenty of temporary exhibitions in the most unlikely of settings, particularly in the summer. Giving home to not only Hungary’s historical, artistic and scientific past but also that of European culture and science. Some of the greatest examples are the Hungarian National Museum, the Museum of Fine Arts and the Hungarian National Gallery.

Speaking of water, the city’s number one reference is the Danube River, which parts the city into the hilly Buda and the flat Pest sides. Budapest is a city of spas, with a unique composition and temperature of the waters, where visitors can relax and recharge in one the 19 different thermal baths, including Turkish hammams.

Budapest and its surrounding is also a real paradise for sport events, for instance marathon runs offer splendid views along the two banks of the river Danube. And let's keep in mind that the city has already hosted many aquatic events. For instance, the 17th FINA World Championships, as well as the very first edition of the European Swimming Championships back in 1926.
