Introduction

Overview

FINA strongly believe in the importance of having a globally-respected workforce of coaches and swimming officials with an established and consistent curriculum, as a key factor for the athlete development and the correct appliance of the FINA officiating rules.

As part of the FINA Development Programme, FINA is currently running clinics to train coaches in each of the six aquatic disciplines: swimming, open water swimming, artistic swimming, water polo, diving and high diving and to train officials in swimming.

Both training programmes, respectively conducted by highly experienced coaches and officials appointed by FINA, are designed to educate and train coaches and swimming officials around the world.

With this initiative, FINA offers to its 209 affiliated national federations the opportunity to successfully develop the aquatic sports in their countries.

Objective

The FINA Clinics for Coaches and FINA Swimming Clinics for Officials are intended to provide basic training for participants of all levels through courses led by an expert nominated by FINA. By offering technical training and promoting best practices, your coaches and swimming officials will develop their skills and support successful performances in the pool.
Clinic description and format

Description

The FINA Clinics for Coaches and FINA Swimming Clinics Officials are available to National Federations wishing to host a training clinic, as well as for National Federations wishing to attend a clinic organised in their continental region.

They are designed to educate and train coaches and swimming officials, ensuring that they are given the opportunity to develop their skills and further the development of aquatics within their countries.

All training clinics will be conducted by an international expert approved by FINA, but as the content is adapted to the Host Federation’s specific requirements, the programme and topics delivered may differ accordingly.

Course format

Regardless of the selected discipline, FINA Clinics for Coaches have a duration from five (5) to ten (10) days, whereas FINA Swimming Clinics for Officials may last from three (3) to five (5) days.

National Federations may choose to organise the entire clinic continuously over a long weekend or over a week-long session, distributing the course hours as best suit the clinic participants.
Clinic location

Each clinic should ensure that the course location has adequate conditions for learning. It is recommended to organise the clinics at a central location in order to facilitate and encourage the participation of coaches or officials.

Teaching modalities

There should be only one (1) lecturer per clinic, if possible coming from the same continent or region.

The clinics should guarantee an adult learning environment and include sufficient time for group work – case studies, role-plays, etc. – and discussions.

The use of additional materials such as videos, computer projected presentations and other didactic documents is recommended to highlight the subject being discussed.

Clinic content

All FINA Clinics can be carried out at one of the following levels: beginners, intermediate or advanced. They should cover theoretical sessions and practical training.

The clinic programme and its content shall be discussed between the Host Federation and the lecturer prior to the course starting date, in order to ensure that it is specifically tailored to the federation’s particular requirements.

You will find the guidelines for a FINA Swimming Clinic for Coaches on the next pages, which could be used as an example of the topics to be covered in each of the levels.
